Question	Answer
We are a certified ASME vessel shop and would like more info on the above SAM notice please. If the drawings for the vessels are on the site I am not finding them. Is there a spot on the site where we can get them? Or can you send the drawings to us by email or snail mail please, Hoping to hear from you. Thanks.	NASA does not have any drawings available. The Statement of Work is the only documentation provided, and the awarded vendor will be responsible for creating the required drawings for Government review.
We would appreciate any information regarding the requirements and procedures necessary to submit a bid for this opportunity. Additionally, we would like to be added to your bidders list for this solicitation as well as any future opportunities that may be relevant to our capabilities. Please let me know what information or documentation you require from us, and I will provide it as soon as possible.	This requirement is being issued as a combined synopsis/solicitation. All necessary requirements, instructions, and procedures for submitting a bid—including the closing date and required documentation—are outlined directly within the solicitation package posted on SAM.gov under Notice ID 80SSC026Q0003. Please review the posted documents carefully to ensure your submission meets all stated criteria. Regarding your request to be added to a bidders list, the government does not maintain a formal, centralized bidders list for this requirement. All updates, amendments, and future opportunities will be posted publicly. We recommend that you "Follow" this opportunity on SAM.gov to receive automatic notifications regarding any changes or future notices relevant to your capabilities.
My question is my Sub Contractor is saying this about the Documentations thats needed. Drawings are sent for approval after PO is received. All remaining requested documentation is standard and will be provided upon completion of the units	This is acceptable.
